

Caring for Yorkshire's canals and rivers

We're the charity working to protect and bring to life this 250-year-old network of canals and rivers spanning England and Wales. Not so long ago many canals were abandoned, and some lost forever. Today, with your support, wildlife is recovering, history is alive, boats are plentiful and spending time in this environment is contributing to our health and happiness.

Our mission is to keep this extraordinary network of canals and rivers alive, teeming with wildlife, transforming places they run through and enriching all of our lives. Your support today could help us care for the Leeds & Liverpool Canal and many more places, for today and generations to come.

Making life better by water

Keeping history alive

In 1848 Sir Titus Salt bought a tract of land alongside the Leeds & Liverpool Canal and commissioned architects Lockwood and Mawson to plan a new community for his workforce, where they could be healthier, happier and more productive.

Salts Mill was the first building to be completed in 1853 and the full village was finished in 1876.

Housing was of the highest quality. Each had a water supply, gas lighting and sanitation, a far cry from the Bradford slums they left behind.
