

Caring for the Shropshire Union Canal

We're the charity working to protect and bring to life this 250-year-old network of canals and rivers spanning England and Wales. Not so long ago many canals were abandoned, and some lost forever. Today, with your support, wildlife is recovering, history is alive, boats are plentiful and spending time in this environment is contributing to our health and happiness.

Our mission is to keep this extraordinary network of canals and rivers alive, teeming with wildlife, transforming places they run through and enriching all of our lives. Your support today could help us care for the Shropshire Union Canal and many more places, for today and generations to come.

Making life better by water

Keeping history alive

Nantwich lies at the junction of the Chester Canal, one of the earliest canals to be built in Britain, and the Birmingham & Liverpool Junction Canal, one of the last major narrow canals to be built. In 1847 the two canals became the main line of the Shropshire Union Canal.

The Nantwich Aqueduct, designed by canal engineer Thomas Telford, opened in 1828. This cast-iron Grade II* listed structure underwent major restoration in 2015.

We're the charity making life better by water

Nestled on the Shropshire Union Canal, the market town of Nantwich was once famous for the production of salt. Today it is the perfect place for enjoying some time by water.
