

Caring for Wales' canals

We're the charity working to protect and bring to life this 250-year-old network of canals and rivers spanning Wales and England. Not so long ago many canals were abandoned, and some lost forever. Today, with your support, wildlife is recovering, history is alive, boats are plentiful and spending time in this environment is contributing to our health and happiness.

Our mission is to keep this extraordinary network of canals and rivers alive, teeming with wildlife, transforming places they run through and enriching all of our lives. Your support today could help us care for Wales' canals and many more places, for today and generations to come.

Keeping history alive

The Monmouthshire Canal and the Brecknock & Abergavenny Canals were used to transport coal, limestone and agricultural products. They were also extensively used by ironmasters and industrialists to take raw iron ore from Newport to Llanfoist Wharf. Remains of this heritage, including wharves and lime kilns, can still be seen along the canal today.

The two canals fell into decline in the early part of the 20th century. However, after years of campaigning, work got underway in 1968 to restore the stretch of canal from Brecon to Pontymoile.

Brecon town centre & castle

Much of the Monmouthshire & Brecon (Mon & Brecon) Canal runs through the Brecon Beacons National Park. Following the line of the wooded Usk Valley, the waterway is often voted Britain's prettiest canal.

Did you know?

The 'Mon & Brecon Canal' was originally two separate canals. The Monmouthshire Canal opened in 1799 and went from Newport to Pontymoile Basin, and the Brecknock & Abergavenny Canal from Pontymoile to Brecon which was completed in 1812.
